I am also working on the answers to some of the most common questions being asked! Thank you for your continued interest. -Jamey House Cleaning Survival. You are our saviour Jamey~ "House cleaning"?? Yes, you heard that right~ "House cleaning survival", this mysterious title is a cleaning game with odd, yet appealing title. It is unlike other cleaning simulation games of other titles in that the goal of the game is to "survive" the house cleaning, rather than cleaning it. What do I mean by "survival"? I mean surviving all the enemies that are invading your domicile in the form of pests and smoke. While cleaning your house, you'll have to use all-powerful cleaning equipment to escape the invasions that have been triggered by the pests and the smoke The story begins when a mysterious character calls for house cleaning. Sounds like a cleaning job? Probably. But let's find out more! Let's get started! ~~~~~ "Welcome to the home you will soon have to clean!!!" 4 Dream Pack Summary: This story takes place before the World Tree arc started. It is revealed within the thread “thread to compile screenshots for your favorite GFs” that has over 2200 active members. This is a compilation into one piece. There is no censoring of any part of the language, the words the characters say are all UNCensored. Consistent with One Piece, it is only the people who are underage are free to say these things, not adults. Thanks go to all those who helped and contributed. Very funny Haku...I’m sure the trolls or whoever knows it will be trying to fire up the imagination of the poor children with new story lines...Haku-tan, you do not know this...meanwhile, GITA IS GONE! That kid is still so worried as if another GITA will call his cell phone out of the blue telling him that he might be a part of another unwanted GITA seeking a new family. He’s beginning to show signs of despair...someone has to pat him on the back so he can get out of this funk...and our team has just the perfect person for the job. I do hope that he will be notified by someone and from there on off, he will have a good time hanging with his shipmates as they enjoy their new life. Next time I message you with something funny, I will share in with you a story about the time that GITA was kidnapped by some intergalactic bocor. He

The SanctuaryRPG™ is a 2D side-scrolling, roguelike hybrid RPG game, designed to be made as a college project by a team of enthusiastic amateurs. The original game featured award-winning graphics made by a team of professional artists and programmers, but we did not want to sacrifice any development time on the graphics, while also trying to keep the game free from buggy code. The result of our work? A game that has impressive graphics, an amazing soundtrack and lots of custom made content, while staying under budget. The game is made in high-quality 2D graphics in 16:9, with very accurate representations of the locations featured in the original game. The game features custom menus that allow the user to easily access the most important game functions, and they can be easily customized to the user's liking, thus allowing the player to make a game that suits them. The game has 19 locations, featuring locales such as, for example, the Grasslands, Mecha City and the Underworld; with the main focus being on brand new and original content, and with as many locations as we could cram into the game, each with all-new puzzles and boss fights. We also feature a soundtrack that, besides having custom-made music, has many traditional indie soundtracks, as well as some of the most well-known game soundtracks. The game has an optional Steam Controller support. Features: • Original 2D high-quality, 16:9 game graphics • 19 locations: Grasslands, The Campgrounds, Mecha City, Wind World, The Library, Underworld, Fire World, Earth World, Water World, The Grind Poutpourri, Westhaven, The Arena, Mother tongue Variations, Sanctuary Arp, Westhaven by Night, The Werewolf Guild, Pax Obiscum, The Temple, Questing, The Matron, • Solve puzzles, find secrets, fight bosses and explore, with a heavy focus on upgrading your character, equipment and weapons • Customize the difficulty level of the game as the player wishes (there is a high and a low difficulty available in the game) • Customizable sound effects, with the ability to switch the sound on and off to the player's liking, as well as the changing of the volume for each sound • A custom-designed menu • A Customizable and easily accessible inventory • A Customizable and easily accessible inventory • A Customizable and easily accessible inventory •

Cultural Preferences and Ethos-Driven Choice of Brain Death Determination. Although a uniform method exists to diagnose and determine brain death, medical professionals' consensus allows for cultural preference-based variations. Researchers have shown that no uniform adherence to medical guidelines takes place. Therefore, we sought to look at the effect of individual characteristics and culture preferences on preferences for brain death determination. A cross-sectional survey was conducted on patients and their surrogates in a United States teaching hospital. The survey used a stratified random sampling, with between-group comparisons of patients and those who are not surrogates and a logistic regression model of individual characteristics and their influence on choice. We enrolled 50 patients and their surrogates. The response rate was 60%. Patients wanted a determination of brain death based on clinical observation (98%), verbal communication (95%), and examination (88.7%). Surrogates wanted all three mentioned modalities to be required (89.6% [33/37]). Logistic regression analysis of individual characteristics showed that the predictors of choice in patients were age over 45 years (odds ratio [OR], 0.21 [95% confidence interval (CI)], 0.06-0.70)], history of informed consent (OR, 13.89 [95% CI, 2.82-65.61]), and religious conflict (OR, 8.99 [95% CI, 2.11-38.49]). Surrogates were significantly (p = 0.0069) more likely (OR, 3.93; 95% CI, 1.43-10.77) than patients to prefer a determination based on clinical observation. Ethnic and cultural differences were identified to affect the choice of brain death determination. The preferences showed divergence in their relative value regardless of whether the determination was made before or after death, but these preferences were not rigidified from the choice. The concerns regarding the choice were not the classical concerns from adherence to guidelines-ethical, medical, and legal. Our study suggests that cultural factors should not be incorporated into the medical professional's decision to follow guidelines
