Personalize your photographs. Record and playback voice messages and text into a Personalized Diary. Simply make your own portfolio to document your moments. FamilyDiary, the only application with this unique feature, allows you to save & share your personal events as a diary. You can take a snapshot of your day and add text, voice recording & a message. All in one place, so you can get back to those special moments. Personalize your diary right from the start by selecting the date and the method that you want to use to record your photos. In addition, you can choose to record from the very first page of your diary - making your first page your "story page" - and then connect your photos in sequence. You can also add a voice or text comment to your diary, and share your diary directly to Facebook or Twitter. Additional features: • Record images, video and voice in one place and customize your diary • Create a custom page for each event and get reminders in the calendar • Connect your diary to your Facebook & Twitter accounts • Record audio & video to Facebook & Twitter • Export your diary as an eBook • Playback recordings • Make it easy to keep your memories in one place • Receive automatic reminders • View the graphically designed calendar • Record automatically up to 100 photos per day • Select the date when the photo is taken • Import your video and voice recordings • Export your diary as an eBook • Create and export books from your diary • View your diary as a timeline • Playback your recordings • Change the look of your diary • Adjust the brightness and contrast of your recordings • Reduce noise on your voice recordings • Record as many photos as you want • Rotate or flip your pictures • Change the format of your diary • Archive your diary • View your photos on the day they were taken • Save your diary • Encode your voice recordings to Mp3, Wav and Wma formats • Choose the application's screen timeoutThe sister of one of two California brothers who fatally shot a two-year-old girl was formally charged Monday with the girl's death — joining the police officer who shot and killed the girl's unarmed family members as a possible defendant in the on-duty death. Stephon Clark, 22, and his brother, and father, Stephen Clark Jr., were killed on March 18 in the backyard of the family's home on the

This is a really easy application that allows you to create a digital notebook. You have the capacity to record photos, voice messages and text messages. As you advance, you will be able to import images from the camera or an album, capture screen shots and share your moments on Facebook and Twitter. Let's start with the interface. The application enables you to add pages that hold a month and a day on them. To start a diary, go to the "New Diary" page, enter a title on the right hand side, and then enter text into the field at the bottom. The next pages you add will contain text, photos or voice messages. You can also rotate the image by clicking on it, or the device will save it at the right angles for you. You can also click on the arrows next to each page to flip the direction you want to scroll the pages. At the top left, there are four buttons, each of which will open a new window for you. The first button is used to the exit the app, the second is for sending a page to your Facebook or Twitter accounts, the third one will display all of your diary pages, and the last one will display the list of pages you currently have. The application will include an option to automatically upload the images you take to Facebook and Twitter. To share the diary on Facebook and Twitter, you will need to use a Facebook account and a Twitter account. In my test, I was able to use my already existing Twitter account. I also would recommend that you enable both Facebook and Twitter icons in your "Actions" menu as they will be available to all of the pages you create. The application includes an option to make the page private when you enter it into Facebook or Twitter. You will also be able to see which pages have been shared on Facebook and Twitter using a button at the bottom right. To get started, click on the 'new' button on the top left, then add a diary by clicking on the 'add' button. You will be able to add the days first and then the months. There is also an option to select a time frame for the diary. You have the ability to use two calendars, one of which is the current day and the other one is the current month. To add a new page, click on the 'new page' button at the bottom of the screen. You can add your first diary page for free. 3a67dfec

The government's Internet police unit, responsible for blocking and filtering websites, has "a quota" of four or five global "trolls" every day, the state-controlled newspaper Global Times said, citing unidentified sources. As China's official media says nothing about the trial, privately-owned media are left to speculate about Zhou's trial. Zhou was put on trial on May 18 on charges of "inciting a conflict" and "gathering a crowd to disturb public order". He could face up to five years in jail and a hefty fine. Zhou, China's vice-president for the security bureau at the Beijing University of Posts and Telecommunications before his fall, resigned from the post in December. Last month, he was suspended from the Communist Party and the university he once headed as president, amid a sweeping corruption investigation that has overshadowed academic life in China, where political interference in the classroom is often routine. Many net users are speculating that the massive anti-corruption campaign was the reason for his ousting. Police Li Jinzhi, Zhou's ex-partner, who exposed the scandal, was found dead in a high-speed train crash, taking the life of himself and his 7-year-old son. Zhou, a former top leader of the Beijing police, was also involved in the high-profile case that led to the execution of British student David Matthew. In 2009, Zhou and Li Jinzhi were accused of "picking quarrels and provoking trouble", based on a jealous rage from Zhou to protect his reputation. Li's mother gave a press conference accusing Zhou of faking a pregnancy, and a tape was released showing Li begging Zhou, who was overseeing an investigation into the case
